FOX COMMUNITIES CREDIT UNION OPENS ITS “LITTLEST BRANCH!”

The Fox Communities Credit Union Exhibit will be unveiled Monday, August 31 at 6 p.m. at The Building for Kids Children’s Museum (BFKCM) in an open house for credit union employees and their families. The Fox Cities Chamber of Commerce will be on hand for a ribbon cutting to celebrate the exhibit being open for business. The exhibit will be open to the public when the Museum opens at 9 a.m. on Friday, September 4.

Fox Communities Credit Union’s “Littlest Branch” will let kids be tellers, make transactions and go through the drive-thru. The exhibit will highlight financial literacy and the importance of saving.

“We are always striving to house exhibits that not only encourage play, but also spark imagination,” said Michael Wartgow, Chief Operating Officer at The BFKCM. “The kind of constructive play the Fox Communities Credit Union Exhibit inspires will help kids experiment with applying concepts and developing cognitive skills.”

Lynn Hopfensperger, Community Development Officer at FCCU said, “This exhibit will be a good learning tool for the kids. We know our members teach their children and this gives them another opportunity to reinforce those skills.”

The new exhibit is generously sponsored by Fox Communities Credit Union, who has a commitment to enrich the quality of life for their members through personalized financial services.
